

I urge you not to approve changes to the current telemarketing laws. I still receive far too many intrusions on my privacy as it is, and allowing businesses to call customers for 18 months after their service has been cancelled would just increase those intrusions. There are good reasons people change service providers and, while one call may be acceptable to some, 18 months is nothing but harassment. Thank you for your consideration.